WHY YOU SHOULD CHOOSE PROWIRED FOR INDUSTRIAL & COMMERCIAL ELECTRICAL INSTALLATIONS

With our experience across industrial and commercial sectors we are aware of the high level of work that is required when taking these projects on. We understand the pressures of Health and Safety legislation within these environments and can help our clients meet their obligations as employers.

We will be using a lot of containment, steel wired armoured and three phase distribution equipment so therefore have all the relevant IPAF tickets for our engineers to give you peace of mind that all will be done in a safe manner. On top of this we also bear in mind that due to the nature of these works and can therefore be on show we believe being neat and tidy is paramount.

We build a strong line of communication and on many sites will report the site lead engineer directly, it is our duty to work with them to make sure the works are completed in budget and more importantly on time and to prevent any downtime or further disruption.
